What's Happening This Week: The No. 10 Washington State University rowing team will hold its lone home regatta of the season as it hosts No. 20 Oregon State, Saturday, May 1 at 2 p.m. at Wawawai Landing...the race is part of WSU's 20 years of varsity rowing celebration...the Cougars will face a Beaver team that has competed against a tough group of teams, most recently placing second in a three-team regatta against No. 12 UCLA and San Diego...in the varsity eight race, OSU finished less than three seconds behind UCLA.

WSU Head Coach Jane LaRiviere on this weekend's race: "Oregon State is always good competition. They've been very strong, they went to the NCAA Championships last year. When I think about Oregon State, I know they'll be super fit and trained. We'll have to execute or things won't go our way."

Pac-10 Highly Ranked: All seven Pacific-10 Conference rowing teams are ranked in the CRCA/U.S. Rowing Division Top-20 Poll for April 28, 2010...four of the seven Pac-10 teams (California – first, Stanford – sixth, WSU – 10th and UCLA – 12th) remained in the same spots as last week, while UW (seventh) and USC (ninth) flipped-flopped spots and Oregon State dropped two places to 20th.

Against Oregon State: Last season the Cougars fell to the Beavers, dropping three of four races at Dexter Lake...the home team has won each of the last four meetings, as WSU took home the Crawford Perpetual Trophy, defeating the Beavers by a total point score of 67 to 66 in 2008 at Wawawai Landing...at the Pac-10 Championships last season, OSU finished 19.5 points ahead of WSU, placing fourth as the Cougs came in sixth.
