Expense to Attend an Institutional Camp or Clinic that Conducts Organized Competition

The committee determined that an individual may receive actual and necessary expenses to attend an institutional camp or clinic from an outside sponsor (e.g., team, neighbor, business) other than an agent or a representative of an institution's athletic interest (and, after initial full-time collegiate enrollment, other than a professional sports organization), provided the camp or clinic conducts organized competition in the sport for its participants. The committee noted that it is not permissible for an employee of an institutional camp or clinic (e.g., high school coach, two year college coach) to provide actual and necessary expenses, including the camp admissions fee, for a prospective student-athlete who is an athletics award winner or is being recruited by the institution to attend the camp or clinic.

SnapChat "Story" Function --- Is OK for Coaches

Due to a recent change in the NCAA legislation, it is now permissible to use SnapChat's "Story" function. Specifically, for those sports who are limited in their modes of electronic communication. The "Story" function of SnapChat allows a user to post information without requiring the viewers to be friends with the user. Similar to Facebook walls or Twitter feeds. Therefore, as long as they adhere to Bylaw 13.4.1.7 (audio/video materials) and the recruiting publicity legislation (Bylaw 13.10.2) a coach is allowed to use the SnapChat Story function.

For those sports who have unlimited forms of electronic communications both functions of SnapChat are considered permissible.

Here is the language from the NCAA staff's decision:

From the staff research of the SnapChat story function, and individual user's "story" is available to the public (e.g., an individual does not have to be a "friend" of the user to view the story). This would be similar to a public Twitter feed or Facebook profile page. Based on that analysis, staff would not consider a story to be private between sender and recipient as per Bylaw 13.4.1.4/ Therefore, communications sent via the Story application must meet the provisions of Bylaw 13.4.1.7 (video/audio materials) and are subject to publicity legislation (Bylaw 13.10).

Remember that it is only the "Story" function in SnapChat that is permissible as a mode of electronic communication.
